Humphrey McQueen Framework of Flesh

'The genius of Humphrey McQueen has brought to life the tremendous and sometimes fatal efforts made by building labourers in constructing the built environment of Australia.'
– Professor Linda Clarke, author of Building Capitalism, Presidium Member, European Institute of Construction Labour Research

Labourers' own words are used to retell their battles around scaffolding and shithouses, for the safe removal of asbestos, prompt and adequate compensation, and a decent burial. The stories start in convict times and cover the six states and the ACT. The labourers' struggle for health and safety is followed into their dismantling of the framework of fear erected by the Building and Construction Commission.
